

COMMUNICATION ON COURSE - OREGON

We operate on a “no news is good news” basis. This means family members typically will not hear from us nor receive updates during the course. Course instructors check in with the base camp every day via satellite phone. Important news regarding student safety or health will be relayed to you immediately.

NWOBS staff take photos during most courses, but because of the remote areas from which they operate, these photos may not be uploaded to our website and Facebook until up to one month after the end of course.

You may send your student letters while they are on course. Care packages are not allowed for courses that are less than 21 days long, and will not be delivered to students; our base camps do not have the capacity to store and deliver packages. Letters typically are delivered to students once a week during resupply days; however, this is not a guarantee. Please review the below chart for letter sending guidelines.
